

Patient presented with severe ankle arthritis and a previous history of subtalar fusion. The fibula was cut to expose the ankle joint and then incorporated into the ankle fusion. Screws were placed to compress the ankle joint to allow for fusion. Patient was too young for an ankle replacement.

